Together in Hope

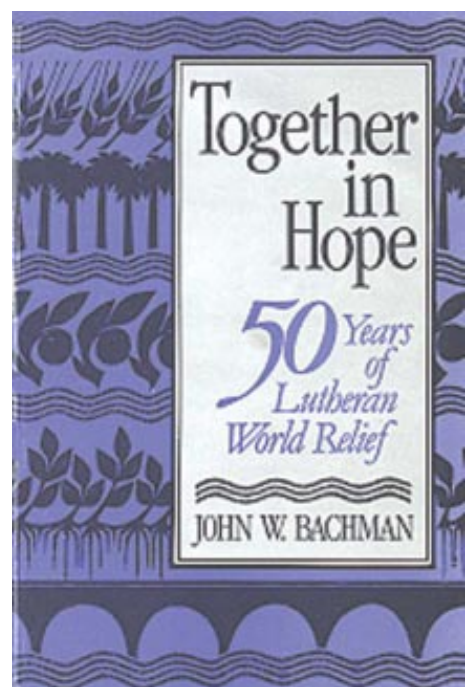

50 Years of Lutheran World Relief

by John W. Bachman

A drama of compassion, this is the story of the Lutheran response to the great global challenges of a tragic century

This is the great story of what Christians can do when they put their minds and hearts into the doing. The activity begun in order to alleviate the suffering after World War II has grown into an agency that has influenced the lives of countless thousands of people throughout the world. In this brief history the reader will see how the LWR mission has matured through its half century of pioneering work.

While saving and protecting lives, LWR has worked to elevate international understanding and public policy.
